

PARKER BOOM IN CONVENTION

vote against Charles F. Murphy's resolution that the convention elect a new State Committee, shows that the factions are coming together.

TAMMANY IN CAUCUS.

During the recess the Tammany delegation caucused. Daniel F. McMahon presiding over the deliberations. Corporation Counsel John J. Delany made a speech endorsing Murphy and declaring that Murphy and the Tammany organization had made every effort for harmony, but had been met by selfish and persistent discourtesy. Tammany had never been irregular, he said. It would come out of a convention bound by the will of the majority, but it reserved the right to go in a convention as it chose and fight for what it believed to be right.

A resolution was then passed authorizing Senator Plunkett to cast the votes of the delegation as a unit.

The convention opened this afternoon amid scenes of great enthusiasm. The delegates marching to Hammers Blecker Hall with banners flying and bands playing. They passed through streets in which every house was lit with burning and flags, and in every window were a dozen or more heads. Everywhere were heard cheers for Judge Alton B. Parker.

The Albany delegation was scheduled to lead the parade, and it swung into State street at the Ten Eyck, every man in a silk hat and headed by a band of over fifty pieces. At the head of all was a squad of mounted men. Over fifty delegations with bands fell in behind the Albany men, and the political dust started away for the hall.

At the head of State street, where the line turned into Eagle street, a band, followed by some thirty seedy-looking men waving blue flags, suddenly shot to the head of the line from a little alley, where they had been hiding. It was the Hearst outfit, and they had planned to head the parade or bust. They succeeded in carrying out their plan and got in the convention hall first. Their coup did not arouse any enthusiasm, however. Hearst made this move in spite of the fact that he hasn't a single delegate in the convention.

THREE BANDS PLAY AT ONCE.

The hall filled rapidly, and when it would not hold another soul there were still hundreds of people on the lawns outside clamoring for admission. Each delegation brought its band in with it, and at one time three bands were playing the "Star-Spangled Banner" at the same time and the delegates were upon their seats waving their hats in the air. The boxes were filled with women. In one box sat the brother of Judge Parker and his wife, and there were many notables in the boxes.

Floods of Hearst literature were dumped on the heads of the delegates from the galleries, and the Hearst men made nuisances of themselves generally.

It was almost 2 o'clock when the big fellows began to arrive. Pat McCarron, long and gaunt, came in, and the Brooklyn delegation went wild. From all sides of the house came cheers for Charles F. Murphy as he marched down the main aisle with A. Bird Gardiner and "Big Tim" Sullivan. There were cheers for the big fellow, too. Gardiner and Murphy sat side by side well up in front and just off the main aisle. Victor J. Dowling sat close by, and so did Tom Grady and John J. Delany. A seat was saved in the same place for Bourke Cockran, who was later than the others in arriving. Mr. Cockran was cheered.

CONVENTION BEGINS WORK.

It was exactly eighteen minutes of 3 o'clock when Chairman Campbell opened the convention and appointed five secretaries of the convention, among them Thomas F. Smith, secretary of Tammany Hall.

George Raines, of Monroe, was chosen temporary chairman of the convention without a dissenting voice. Thomas F. Grady, of New York; John F. Grady, of New York; John L. Shea, of Kings, and Robert A. Maxwell were appointed a committee to escort Mr. Raines to the platform. The appearance of Mr. Raines and his escort on the platform was the signal for more applause.

By far the most interesting part of Mr. Raines's speech was that devoted to the convention's choice of Alton B. Parker as its candidate for the Presidency. Mr. Raines said that not only the Democracy but the entire country hungers for a conservative, level-headed, well-balanced candidate, one who will not daily get on the nerves of the country. Mr. Raines started the up-States cheering by saying there was no difference of opinion as to the candidate, but simply a difference as to the best way in which to express the choice. The majority would prevail, he said, and once a decision was made, he was confident that all would acquiesce. This brought out more cheering, during which the Tammany men were absolutely silent.

The afternoon session of the convention closed with the calling of the temporary roll. On motion of Senator McCarron the convention took a recess until this evening.

GRADY FORCES HILL TO MAKE CONCESSION.

(Special to The Evening World.)

ALBANY, N. Y., April 18.—Before the convention assembled there was a meeting of the State Committee. It was surprisingly peaceful. Where Tammany had planned to make its first stand—the contest in the First District of Onondaga—the Hill men yielded after listening to a half hour of rather plain talking from Senator Thomas F. Grady. The concession by Hill on its face appears to be a conciliatory move, for yesterday the Hill men were shouting that under no circumstances would a single anti-Hill delegation be even seated in the temporary organization. They have now calmly allowed three such delegates to take their seats, and there seems to be little doubt but what the Committee on Credentials will endorse the move during the recess of the convention this afternoon.

The State committee headquarters were crowded to suffocation when Chairman Campbell rapped his gavel for order. In a jiffy the work on the programme was under way and George Raines, of Rochester, was selected as the temporary and permanent chairman.

When Onondaga County was called the anti-Hill men were named by State Committee man John Dunfee, but the contesting delegation made up of Hill men were declared seated by Mr. Campbell.

The Tammany men were furious at this reverse of his own ruling by Mr. Campbell, and they made such a fuss that Mr. Campbell again reversed himself. This brought Senator McCarron to his feet in a second. He does not want Murphy to have a single delegate outside of New York, and he protested against seating the Dunfee men in spite of the fact that the Hill men in Cattaraugus were seated over the anti-Hill men under precisely similar circumstances. Senator Grady then took the floor and began his harangue in favor of the anti-Hill men.

GRADY'S STINGING SPEECH.

"If you have decided on any kind of unfairness in the power of a brutal majority—to suppress the minority," said Senator Grady, "then it makes little difference to us for whom you give instructions or how long these instructions are. Remember that when you decide to deprive men of their rights in a convention in this State they still have a national convention to which to appeal, and will use that privilege. Do you want the talent of 1892 on this convention? You trampled on your properly elected delegates then, and were properly punished. Do you want the same fate next July?"

"To-day there is a magnificent opportunity for complete Democratic success in this State. The clouds never looked down on a more hopeful scene, and all that is necessary is for us to be of one mind. The point of difference between us is very small. Some say now is the time to name our candidate; others say no. Are you ready to manipulate a State convention in order to carry your point? Be careful."

Everybody looked to Senator McCarron to see what he would reply, but he merely shook his head. He had been whispering with Mr. Sheehan during Grady's speech. Mr. Sheehan and Mr. Parker are known to be opposed to rubbing it too hard into Tammany Hall. Mr. Campbell then announced that he had ruled that he would seat the delegates named by the State committee men and would therefore seat the Dunfee men. Senator McCarron's face then changed its expression. He declined to say whether he would vote for the concession over again before the Committee on Credentials, which will meet this afternoon.

CHASED PATRONS FROM HIS STORE

Andrew Donohue Becomes Suddenly Demented and Causes a Panic Among His Customers and Employees.

After acting queerly for several days Andrew Donohue, a tailor, living at No. 32 West Fortieth street, became violent in his tailoring establishment at No. 32 West Fortieth street, one door from Broadway, this afternoon, and caused a panic among his employees and customers.

Before policemen could be called to the store Donohue had destroyed about $100 worth of cloth and had chased his customers and clerks from the place.

William Lloyd, one of the clerks, grappled with the man and the police found them struggling on the floor. The tailor had a grip on the other's throat and only released it when Policeman Walsh, of the Broadway Squad, rushed his knuckles with a club. Walsh had to ask the assistance of Policeman Brady and several bystanders before he could control the man.

An ambulance was summoned from the New York Hospital and Dr. Reed said that Donohue was demented.

SOLD BEER; GETS 5 MONTHS. Restaurant Man Had No Liquor License.

Because he accommodated a policeman with two bottles of beer in his restaurant at No. 691 Sixth avenue, Peter Sakallardis, not having a liquor license, must spend the next five months in prison.

Sakallardis was convicted in Special Sessions this afternoon of selling beer without a license. Policeman Melvor, of the West Twenty-seventh street station, wrote he had bought the two bottles of beer there a week ago. Sakallardis admitted he had sold the beer to a policeman, but said he purchased it in a neighboring saloon.

As Sakallardis could not pay the fine of $50, Justice Hissdale fixed the imprisonment at 150 days and designated the Tombs as the place of imprisonment.

OVERCOME BY GAS. Woman Found Unconscious in Apartments Hurried to Hospital.

Fannie Calowitz, twenty-seven years old, was found unconscious in her apartment at No. 26 East Eighty-fifth street, to-day, overcome by gas.

An ambulance was summoned and she was taken to the Brookhattan Hospital.

WOMAN SAVED WITH HER BABY TRIPLETS. Mother and Three-Day-Old Infants Carried Down Ladders from Burning House—Other Rescues During Panic.

PASSAIC, N. J., April 18.—A mother and her babies, triplets, were rescued by firemen at a blaze that gutted three tenements, Nos. 182, 141 and 143 Ninth street, to-day. The fire started in an unoccupied apartment on the second floor of No. 182, and spread rapidly. The buildings were three-story frame structures, and were occupied by a large number of families.

Escape by the stairway in No. 182 was cut off, and Mrs. John Drench and her babies, two boys and a girl, to whom she gave birth three days ago, were among those shut off from escape on the top floor.

When the firemen arrived they ran up a ladder to the top of the building, and Mrs. Drench and her three little ones were the first to be taken down.

Neither she nor the babies appeared to be any the worse for their experience. A number of women and children, the three buildings, and all the tenants were brought down the ladders from the top of the burning structure, and the firemen escaped without injury. The firemen were burning bones. The loss was about $750.

BIG MERGER WINS CONTINENTAL SUIT

New Jersey Court Rules It Would Be a Hardship to Interfere in Northern Securities Distribution.

VERY LIKE THE ACTION BROUGHT BY HARRIMAN.

Restraining Order to Prevent Division of Northern Pacific and Great Northern Holdings as Planned Is Denied.

The hearing in the suit against the Northern Securities Company, asking a restraining order against the announced method of distribution of that company's holdings of Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroad stocks held in Jersey City to-day, resulted in a victory for the big merger company.

E. T. Nichols, secretary and treasurer of the Northern Securities Company, filed an affidavit very similar to that filed in the Minnesota suit, the only new thing being a statement that the Continental Securities Company became a stockholder of record of 500 shares on March 28, six days after the distribution of stock had been decided upon.

Counsel for Mr. Verner demanded the production of the books, which demanded the counsel for the Northern Securities Company objected, and the argument was protracted. Thomas Thatcher, representing 5,000 shares of stock, objected to any extension being granted.

A Mr. Cortright, one of the stockholders, said that 2,500,000 shares of stock were ready to assent to the plan of reorganization as set forth in the circular recently issued by the Northern Securities Company. He said there are 3,564,000 shares of stock of the company outstanding; therefore, more than half are in favor of the plan of reorganization.

Charles E. Thompson, who was accompanied in court by Charles H. Verner, of Boston, who is said to be the backbone of the Continental Securities Company, read an affidavit of Verner, but this was objected to by Mr. Griggs as containing new matter and not rebuttal.

Vice-Chancellor Bergen ruled that Verner should have told all he knew in the application, and that he must now confine himself to the rebuttal. Thompson argued that by a decision of the United States District Court in Minnesota the company, having failed in its purpose, should now return to the original stockholders the stock they put in.

Mr. Griggs argued that the holding company has legal ownership, and is acting in an equitable manner. It was shown by affidavits that more than two-thirds of the stock, as filed gave assent to the plan of reorganization. There was nothing to show that there should be an application of the Sherman act. As the Attorney-General had none to make, Mr. Griggs closed his argument by asking for the discharge of the rule.

After a lengthy argument Vice-Chancellor Bergen announced that he would have to dismiss the bill. He said he would have to sustain the contentions of the Northern Securities Company, and he further remarked that any interference on the part of the Court was unwarranted and would work a hardship on the stockholders of the company.
